EARLY WW2 POLISH ARMY PAINT SET

Standard colours of Polish vehicles in 1939

Front: Vickers E. Back: Ursus A TKS tankette transporter, Fiat 508 III W "Lazik"

Between 1936-37 a new standard camouflage scheme was introduced onto Polish Army vehicles, consisting of irregular (mostly horizontal) shapes of greyish-sand and dark brown applied over a green base. In mid-1938 the pattern used on some vehicles became more regular, giving a checkerboard impression. Part of utility and artillery vehicles presented an overall khaki green scheme.
